AS DRY AS A FISH. On yesterday a seedy-looking individual evidently an ex-member of the celebrated Col. Rye Tanglefoot's brigade, sauntered along South Halsted street as thirsty as a fish and as impecunious as a Carmelite friar. He gazed into the saloon windows with a liquidly yearning air of thirst, and read the mottoes display-ed in reference to "Tom and Jerry," "Hot Scotch," and other panacea for "hot coppers," with a pathetic sigh. At last a brilliant idea entered his Gambrinus-haunted braio. Boldly marching into a tanglefoot recruiting depot near Adams street, he walked up to the bar with the air of a Rothschild, and demanded "Burb'o" in that tone which a man assumes when he feels himself supported by a plethoric bank account. The knight of the toddy-stick responed with such a smile as only a knight of the toddy-stick can assume when ten cents is in prospective, and the boss abroad. The "bummer" filled his glass-five fingers to the charge-and disposing of it in a twink ling, gazed earnestly on the bar-keeper. The latter individual observed him condescendingly, and fingered the till. It was but for a moment, however, for the sequesterer of "Burb'n," rolling his eyes flercely upon him, gave a savage growl, and, with a short canine yelp, commenced vigorously masticating the counter. The bar-tender mounted the icechest and threw pop-bottles at him. Another individual present took a seat on the top of the stove, but got down again and went out of doors, leaving the "bummer" master of the situation. He improved upon it to kick his heels in the air, growled savagely, then making a spap at the bar-tender's legs, he gave a parting yelp, and, with an extra flourish of his parrative, withdrew. The game worked so well he came over on the South side and tried it on Van Buren street. Indeed, he went mad so frequently that the "Burb'n" overcame his ability for the star part he was playing. At a saloon on Polk street he entered and made the usual demand, which was complied with, and the liquor disposed of down his well-warmed thorax. Then he eyed the man bibind the counter, and commenced rolling his eyes. He even essayed a bark that ingloriously terminated in a hiccup. The bar-tender looked on suspiciously, and tapped suggestively on the counter with his forefuger. The other attempted to growl, but as he nearly strangled himself with growl, but as he nearly strangled himself with the effort he gave up in disgust, and murmur-ed maudlingly, "hydrophoby." But the bar-tender thought there was very little of a hydro nature about him, and, taking the "phoby" man by the lappel of his coat, ushered him in to the street with a boot-leather motor. As the bummer stood balancing himself, heel and toe, on the sidewalk, a small yellow dog thought he saw an opportunity for a matinee, and commenced barking at him. At this the "phoby damn !"- Chicago Times.

Why do not the people of New Orleans use the immense water power of the Mississippi? Because they can't-dam it.

"A distinguished member of the Kentucky Legislature" is reported in the Louisville Commercial as having candidly "acknowledged the corn." Reappearing, after an absence from his seat of three days, he said he had "been sick." "What's been the matter with you?" he was asked. "Well, some folks call it nervous chilis; others pronounce it a kind of affection of the heart; but, to be candid, I call it a plain case of old fashioned drunk."

A Southern poet tells how a St. Louis lover gave up a match with a $50,000 heiress, because she objected to his smoking: This maid, as by the papers doth appear,

Whom fifty thousand dollars made so dear, To test Lothario's passion, simply said : "Forego the weed, before we go to wed;

For smoke take flame - I'll be that flame bright fanner; To have your Anna, give up your Havana;"

But he, when thus she brought him to the scratch,

Lit his eigar, and threw away his match.

At a recent funeral in Danbury, where several organizations were in attendance, no crape badges were provided for a female society. The President, after figeting about in a manper peculiar to her unfortunate and happy sex, suddenly blurted out, "I declare! I don't en-joy this funeral one bit!" The announcement cast a gloom over the entire gathering.

"I can't jine the grange," said an Oregan farmer. "I am sorry," was the reply; "we had counted on you." "No, I can't jine," said the farmer, "because they've let the women in, and they'll work it round so as to get to vote d'rec'ly, and I won't have nuthin' to do with it. The women is gettin' above their privileges, anyway. They don't stay at home enough now, as St. Paul commanded, and I tell you I won't have nothin to do with granges.

A slab above a grave in Arkansas bears the following legend, evidently the tribute of a devoted but discriminating husband,

"She washed the children. Fed the fowls, And made her home Resound with howls."

Chorus of ladies (to comely curate who is ascending the ladder to hang decorations) - "O. Mr. Sweetlow, do take care! Don't go up! So dangerous! "Do come down! O!" Rector (sarcastically)-"Really, Sweetlow, don't you think you,d better let a married man do that?

-Punch. 'Kiss me," was all she said. (Modern novel) That was "enough said" to any young man-Boston Post.
